About

PEOPLE AROUND THE GLOBE «Look at the people of our city, they have an imprint of peculiarity.», — said the famous Russian writer Alexander Griboyedov in his play “Woe from Wit” almost 200 years ago. In fact, there is some thing that unites the residents of the same city or the same region. This thing makes them stand out among other people around the globe. For example, Moscovites are always in a hurry, while Englishmen are usually composed and lofty, retirees in Tokyo often ride bicycles, New York residents smile all the time, and Siberians are traditionally gloomy. Why so? This cycle is mostly focused on people from different countries and regions. It describes the national characters, the peculiarities of lifestyles and the mentality of people from across the globe. However, it won't leave aside sightseeings, natural beauties, culinary secrets, national traditions and holidays. This programme will give tourist some tips how to avoid embarrassing situations and take current events in the right spirit.
