About

Our life is a weird thing: it is not as straight-forward as we think of it. And even our closest people do not live the life that we choose for them without asking or that we are used to assign to them. Three women of different age groups who have nothing in common and do not know each other find out on the same day that something poses a real threat to their lives. What's more surprising is that each of them receives a 'good luck letter' 'from the other side' because the author of the letter who sentenced them to death is a retired mathematician who died one month before the current events. Naturally, when the women find themselves in such a paradoxical and almost surreal situation, they try to get help from the police. But it's not going to be easy to unravel the tangle. Even more so because not only will each woman try to not cooperate with investigators but they will do everything to hide from the police the most important stuff, the very nasty 'skeleton in their closet' that makes them wake up in the middle of the night in a cold ...
